PATIENT: PARK, SOUYONG DOB: 04/23/1966 Gender: MRN: 193 AGE: 52 Years

VISIT TYPE: Office Visit Established

CHIEF COMPLAINT: Pt in for follow-up with CRNP.

Symptoms: Patient reports that she is feeling better. She reports that she went to counseling center on Tuesday.

Context: She reports talking to counselor more about her family life. She says that her parents divorced when she was 4 or 5. She says in her culture, divorce is frowned upon and people tend to feel pity for the children of divorced parents. She reports living with her mother and stepfather in South Korea. She reports that her biological father is educated as her mother (university professors) but her stepfather was not as educated (not a university professor) but was a business who is fairly successful.

Patient reports that her biological father forgot about her when her Mother and Father divorced. Patient reports that when she was a teenager, she talked to her mother about her real father. Her mother told her that he was dead but patient investigated and went to the University where he worked.

ModFact: Patient reports that her mother loves her and always telling the patient that she is sorry. She reports that her mother paid for her son's tuition throughout high school. She says that she cannot talk to her mother about her real father because she does not want to stress her mother (mother is 80).

She says that she felt disconnected from her stepfather because she had her guard up. She reports going to live with her grandparents at one point during her life (gp parents are rich). She depended on her grandfather a lot. She reports that now she and her stepfather have an okay relationship. She says that she told her sister 5 years ago that she had a different father than her siblings. She says her sister was surprised. Patient did not tell her brother.

Patient reports that she is afraid to find her father. She says that her name was changed when her mother remarried.

Other: Patient reports that she has attempted to find her father several times but is afraid that her mother would not approve (her mother says that her father is bad and selfish). Patient reports that her husband is supportive of her looking for her father. She reports that she wants to portray a perfect family but really she is hurting and empty on the inside because she has not found her father.

Patient reports that she has never talked about her family issues until now (in counseling and at clinic).
