GONG, ZHENG

CT SCAN OF THE THORAX WITHOUT CONTRAST ENHANCEMENT

INDICATION: Nonspecific abnormal finding of lung field.

RADIOGRAPHIC FINDINGS: Supraclavicular, axillary, mediastinal and hilar nodes appear normal. The great mediastinal vessels are of normal course and caliber. The heart is of normal size. Lung windows show a small cluster of centrilobular nodules of soft tissue attenuation in the apical posterior segment of the left upper lobe (tree in bud pattern). This is a nonspecific findings often seen in bacterial, fungal, viral or parasitic infections as well as aspiration or inhalation of a foreign substance. Clinical correlation is necessary. The lung parenchymal is otherwise unremarkable. Sections through the upper abdomen reveal normal liver parenchyma and normal adrenal glands.
